Awards Judging

The Learning By Design awards program is a blind, peer-reviewed and scored juried program.

The jury make-up consists of 5–7 highly regarded education facility architects, designers, and education-based professionals from across North America. Jurors are recommended by the American Institute of Architects Committee on Architecture for Education (AIA-CAE), the Association for Learning Environments (A4LE), the Association for University Interior Designers (AUID), and by the Publisher of Learning By Design.

Every project is judged and scored in seven specific criteria. From the highest scoring projects the jury will choose several projects for special recognition of either Grand Prize, Citation of Excellence, or Honorable Mention awards. All other projects will be published as Outstanding Projects.

Early Bird Discount Deadline: March 13, 2020
Final Registration Deadline: May 15, 2020
Project Submission E-Upload Date: June 22, 2020
Additional Exposure for Noted Projects

Winning a top award: Grand Prize, Citation of Excellence, or Honorable Mention truly means your work stands out among its peers.

These “Best-in-Class” projects may not just be beautiful, but rather they showcase the latest concepts in forward-thinking education design and practice and tell how teams collaborated to achieve excellence.

Learning By Design recognizes stand-out award winners with added space and jury comments.

- Every GRAND PRIZE Award Winner receives an additional full-page portfolio and national press release mention.
- CITATION OF EXCELLENCE award winners receive an extra half-page portfolio.
- HONORABLE MENTION award winners receive an additional quarter-page portfolio.

Each issue of Learning By Design reaches the members of The Association For Learning Environments (A4LE); The Society for College and University Planners (SCUP); The American Institute of Architects Committee on Architecture for Education (AIA-CAE); The Association for University Interior Designers (AUID).

Innovation: The extent in which the finished design fulfilled project goals by use of innovative, dynamic, and flexible building or site solutions.

Sustainability: How does the project live up to modern energy and environmental-design expectations? What sustainable building practices did it employ; what green building certification did it receive; does the design support a connection to nature?

Next Generation Learning: The manner in which the design supports modern pedagogical practices that shape the student experience and enhance academic activities.

Functional Design/Planning Process: How did the design meet the organization’s strategic goals and bottom line while supporting the needs of the key stakeholders and the fundamental components of contemporary education design?

Community Needs: How does the design demonstrate flexibility and adaptation to meet the community’s needs. Is the design appropriate in context to the local economic demographic and site location and addressing issues of safety and security?

Interiors: How interior design elements (color, texture, art, lighting, acoustics) enrich the built environment; are applicable to the age and or demographic of the designed space and inhabitants; and celebrate the culture of the institution or community served.

Judging Components: How did the visual presentation look? Did the photography show the learning spaces as well as the exterior, the public or common use spaces? Were site and floor plans included? Was the narrative informative and reflective of the project’s challenges, its goals, and the client’s desired outcomes? Did renovations show before and after photos?
